Forward

I wrote my latest song, Talk to Your Baby, in honor of the research of Betty Hart and Todd Risley. I first discovered their work in 2014 through a BBC news article entitled Providence Talks. Providence, Rhode Island initiated a program based on the findings of Hart and Risley, to encourage parents to talk to their babies from the time they were born. The thorough longitudinal study described in Differences in the Everyday Experience of Young American Children (1995) and The Social World of Children Learning to Talk (1999) concluded that the amount of talk along with the kind of talk made a difference in levels of literacy. This was demonstrated when the children were tested later in third grade, regardless of the parents' socio-economic status or education. Research found that the positive, caring connection between child and parent while conversing about a myriad of topics just for fun is crucial for learning in school. The children of parents who talked to their children only when necessary to accomplish a task or to alter their child's behavior, did not have that same bond, and didn't fare as well in the third grade assessments.

Up to the age of four, children of talkative parents had heard approximately 45 million words; most children in the middle had heard around 26 million words; and the children of parents who spoke little, had only heard around 13 million words (p. 198 from Meaningful Differences). This points to a huge word gap, which I believe can be addressed when parents are aware of their role in their child's learning to speak and become literate.

No matter what the level of education, parents can talk about the world around them, in the language they know best, building a bond and vocabulary to give their children the gift of social language – a connection to the world, to people, and to learning.

Talk to Your Baby is my encouragement to parents to help their babies learn to talk and to trust others to teach them. The song is also a posthumous "thank you" to Hart and Risley, for their many years of discovering how babies learn to talk, and how parents can foster that vital connection between parent and child.

United Christian Parish of Reston graciously donated their space to record the Grammar Songs, most of the raps, and the English version of Talk to Your Baby. I am indebted to Misha Tumanov, our accompanist, vocalists Kevin Fletcher and Lois McMahon, and sound engineer Craig Daniels, all of whom brought my words to life.

Amelia Arraya masterfully took my Spanish draft and fashioned it into the splendid Habla con tu bebé, the Spanish version of Talk to Your Baby. I am so grateful for the insight, poetic sense, and authenticity she brought to crafting lyrics that go beyond a literal translation. Misha Tumanov then arranged the syllables onto the music to make it perfect. The final touch was recording Emmeline Mejía's lovely voice on the audio file.

The next in this suite was German, and the genius of Martha Kopp-Bless is apparent in the lyrics of Sprich zu Deinem Baby. I am eternally grateful for her friendship and expertise, from the very beginning of my That Crazy English adventures.

My dear friend from Reston Chorale, Alisa Wang, translated Talk to Your Baby into Chinese. Alisa worked hard to turn the essence of the English version into a lovely song, which is now available in an audio file.

I am truly thankful for the encouragement and assistance I have received from everyone on this page in creating the Talk to Your Baby Kit. I thank my husband, David, son Ben, sage advisor Patricia Rayner, and other friends, for listening and supporting my endeavors.

Verses

Refrain

Talk to Your Baby

Talk to your baby often,
he's listening to every sound.
He may not be forming words yet,
but ideas are soaring around.

Talk about everything that you see on your walk.
Ask questions; leave some pauses;
and soon one day she will talk.

Talk about nature,
the earth, the sea, and the sky.
Talk about all creatures
that walk or swim or fly.

Look deep in his eyes
and he'll know that you care.
He'll listen, then hear his own words fill the air.

Keep talking, use still more words:
more concepts to teach!
She'll happily grasp for those sounds in her reach.

Sing songs, play some games!
You will each take your turn.
Read books every day and more words he will learn.

Ask questions that start “Who, what, when, where,
how, and why...”
She'll soon want to speak;
and she'll be eager to try!

First one word, then many;
your dream will come true:
Talk to your baby often,
and your baby will talk to you!

Habla con tu bebé

Habla con tu bebé a menudo,
Cada uno los sonidos escucha él.
Ahora, no puede formar palabras,
Pero ideas están creciendo en él.

Habla sobre todas las cosas, que puedes ver en tu caminar
Hazle preguntas, haz unas pausas,
Y un día él hablará.

Habla de la naturaleza
La tierra, el cielo y el mar.
Habla de todos los seres
de su caminar, volar, o nadar.

Mira profundo en sus ojos
él sabrá que es importante para ti.
Él escuchará y luego oirá
sus palabras el aire llenar.

Sigue hablando, usa más palabras
Hay más que enseñar.
Ella descubrirá feliz
Los sonidos que puede lograr.

Canta canciones y juega
disfruta el diálogo con él.
Léele libros todos los días
y más palabras él aprenderá.

Hazle preguntas que comiencen con:
quién, qué, cuándo, dónde, cómo,
y por qué.
Ella pronto querrá hablar,
ella pronto querrá intentar.

Primero una palabra, luego, muchas tu sueño se hará realidad.
¡Habla con tu bebé a menudo,
Y tu bebé te hablará también!

Es kann das Wort noch nicht bilden,
Ideen sind jedoch schon da.

Sprich über alles, erzähle, was Du siehst auf dem Wege.
Halt manchmal inne, dann frage
und sprechen wird es bald rege.

Sprich über Mutter Natur, die Erde, den Himmel, das Meer.
Sprich über die Kreaturen die gehen, fliegen und schwimmen umher.

Schau in die Augen ihm richtig und es weiss, es ist wichtig.
Es wird lauschen und nimmt dann
bald wahr,
die eigenen Worte ganz klar.

Sprich mit immer mehr Worten,
es gibt zu lehren noch viel.
Glücklich wird es aufgreifen neue Laute in diesem Spiel.

Sing Lieder, spiel auch Spiele, einmal das Baby, dann Du.
Lies täglich auch aus Büchern und neue Worte lernt es dazu.

Stell Fragen, die beginnen:
“Wer, was, wann, wo, wie und warum?”
Es wird schon bald dann auch sprechen und begierig sein es schnell zu tun.

Ein erstes Wort, dann viele
und Dein Traum wird bald wahr, Sprich nur oft zu Deinem Baby
und in Bälde spricht es sehr klar.

A Gift for Your Baby

Based on the research of Betty Hart and Todd Risley, Talk to Your Baby gives you gentle reminders of how to talk with your young child whether in English, Spanish, German, Chinese or any other language. Building a strong relationship between the two of you and talking about many topics when you make the time just to chat, builds the foundation of literacy that is vital later in school. Refer to the references in this kit for inspiration and guidance. And most of all, enjoy the time you spend talking with one another.

Kathleen Leatherwood received her B.S.Ed. in Elementary Education, endorsement and certification in English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL), and certification as a Phono-Graphix Therapist. She has taught English to adults in Germany, and was an ESOL teacher for Fairfax County Public Schools in Virginia. Kathleen's interests in literacy and communication led her to also attain her Advanced Diploma in Benesh Dance Notation; she is an Associate of the Institute of Choreology in London. She has choreographed and directed stage productions for children and adults, enjoys playing the piano, guitar, and djembe, and speaks Spanish and German. Kathleen lives in Reston, Virginia.
